Holiday Open House: Sunday, Nov 23rd will be our holiday open house from 12-4. We will have 25% off all regular priced quilting fabric and an extra 10% off the sale fabrics. There are other sale items marked around the store including a box of pattern books that are only $1.00. Help me clean out the sale stuff!

Frames 15% Off: November 18-22 we will offer a discount on all regular priced frames that we have in stock. Get those projects out from under the bed or out of the drawer that you have finished stitching but are not yet displayable. Stop to see if we have a frame the right size.

Fall Foliage Fabric Tour: It is time for tour which runs Oct. 22nd through 25th. Each person who visits all seven participating shops and gets their passport stamped (with purchase) will receive six fat quarters of fall fabric. Plus you'll get 7 free patterns to use with the bundle - one from each of the shops along the way. This is a change from the way we have conducted the fall hop in previous years so please take note.

Fern Ridge Trunk Show - Not: Although I booked this show a year ago at the St. Charles market, they evidently didn't write it down or changed without letting me know. So we will not have their models for you to see.

Newsletter Delivery: If you would prefer an email when it is posted on our web site rather than receiving a mailed copy – save paper and postage, let me know. You will receive a blind copy sent to me, Karol Simmer, so no one else sees your address, with the link to the web page. Please be sure to allow/approve emails from karol@myfiberworks.com so they don't get rejected or end up in your spam folder.

Next Block of the Month: I have chosen a quilt called All That Jazz by Grizzly Gulch for our next project series. It has a focal fabric of a lovely poppy print with greens, lavenders, black and white tonals to make a queen sized quilt. The cost will be $30.00 a month for 6 months. This will include all the fabric for the front. Sign up now!

TECHNIQUE TIP: Fabric Grain

You may have noted that some quilt patterns have you sew two squares or a square and a rectangle, like flying geese, together on a diagonal line and then cut off the corner leaving a 1/4" seam allowance. This results in two half square triangles sewn together. Why? It wastes more fabric than sewing two triangles together.

When fabric is woven, long threads are stretched across a loom to form the warp to create the lengthwise grain of the fabric. The threads woven back and forth across these are called the weft threads creating the crosswise grain. The selvage edge is created on either side as the weft threads turn around to go back the other direction. The warp threads are the stabilizers in your fabric and there are usually more warp threads than weft in a square inch of cotton material.

If you take a small piece and stretch it by holding on to (or parallel to) the selvage edges it will not have much give. If you try the same thing holding on to the crosswise grain, it will give a little more but not distort itself. If you pull on a 45 degree angle, the true bias, you will see that a lot of stretching occurs. Any cut of fabric not on the straight of grain loses stability and must be handled with care so that it is not pulled out of shape when sewn.

Squares and rectangles with their 90 degree corners fit naturally into the weave of the threads. Triangles. however, will have a least one edge on the bias. If you can sew this edge to a straight grain edge you will have less "wavy" seams. Once fabric is stretched in a seam, no amount of pressing will get rid of the puckers. When you sew two squares together and then cut them to triangles before you open the fabric, you are not sewing two bias cut edges together and so will give you a nicer join. The stretchiness of bias can be used to its advantage when cutting strips for binding or applique pieces because curving around edges of a quilt or a curvy design is easier. Lengthwise grain strips are a good choice for outer borders of a quilt if you need to add stability. Learn the characteristics of a material's grain to aid your cutting decisions and improve the look of your finished project.
